Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If the period for reply specified above is less than thirty (30) days, a reply within the statutory minimum of thirty (30) days will be considered timely.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Status

- 1) Responsive to communication(s) filed on 8/4/03.
 2a) This action is FINAL. 2b) This action is non-final.
 3) Since this application is in condition for allowance except for formal matters, prosecution as to the merits is closed in accordance with the practice under Ex parte Quayle, 1935 C.D. 11, 453 O.G. 213.

Disposition of Claims

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Minovitch (U.S. Patent No. 4,361,202).

As to claim 5, Minovitch discloses an on-vehicle electronic apparatus comprising: means for acquiring travel information of a travel group including a self vehicle; and means for informing a driver of information of the travel group on the basis of the acquired travel information (See abstract; col. 26, lines 40-56).

Claim 12 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Tak (U.S. Patent No. 20030109972).

As to claim 12, Tak discloses an on-vehicle electronic apparatus comprising: means for generating a packet (via the communication modules) which contains information indicating a transmission destination, and data to be transmitted; and means for transmitting the generated packet to the transmission destination via a moving wireless LAN access point (See abstract; Figs.1-2).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tak (US 20030109972) in view of Minovitch (U.S. Patent No. 4,361,202).

As to claim 1, Tak discloses an on-vehicle electronic apparatus comprising a wireless communication unit which makes a wireless communication via a wireless LAN; and means for taking a collision avoidance measure (see abstract; paragraphs 0059 0060) but fails to specifically disclose means for acquiring travel information from vehicles around a self vehicle using the wireless communication unit;. In a related art, Minovitch discloses means for acquiring travel information from vehicles around a self vehicle and taking a collision avoidance measure on the basis of the acquired travel information (See abstract, lines 17-27; col. 26, lines 40-56). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the system of Tak with that of Monovitch by acquiring travel information from vehicles around a self vehicle and taking a collision avoidance measure on the basis of the acquired travel information in order to provide fully automated road transportation system for private and commercial vehicles.

Claims 15, 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hayashi et al. (U.S Patent No. 6,061,628) in view of Tak (U.S. Pub No. 20030109972).

As to claims 15, 19, Hayashi et al. disclose an on vehicle electronic apparatus which searches for a route to a destination, and issues an instruction to a driver in correspondence with a travel position, comprising: means for acquiring route information of vehicles around a self vehicle using a (VICS Vehicle Information & Communication System); means for estimating a traffic jam state on the basis of the acquired route information; means for searching for another route on the basis the traffic jam state; and means for presenting the found route to the driver (via a display 12 as shown in Fig.1) (See col. 3, lines 10-28; Fig. 11; col. 1, lines 50-60; col. 6, lines 1-25). Though Hayashi et al. disclose the acquiring information of vehicles using VICS transmission, it does not specifically disclose using a wireless LAN. In a related art, Tak discloses a driver's vehicle diagnostic apparatus wherein it uses communication modules LAN. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the system of Hayashi et al. with that of Tak by having a wireless LAN for faster communication purposes.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 2-4, 6-11, 13-14 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 16-18 are allowable over the prior art of record.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
